

2018-19 OSU Men's Hoops B1G Schedule Announced

The Big Ten announced the men's basketball conference schedule for the 2018-19 season on Tuesday.

Ohio State, led by second-year head coach Chris Holtmann, opens league play by hosting Minnesota on Dec. 2. The Buckeyes then have a neutral-site game vs. Illinois at the United Center in Chicago on Dec. 5.

OSU spends the rest of December wrapping up nonconference action before resuming the Big Ten season on Jan. 5 at home against Michigan State, last year's regular-season conference champion.

Holtmann's club then goes on the road for games at Rutgers (Jan. 9) and at Iowa (Jan. 12) prior to returning to Columbus to face Maryland on Jan. 18 and Purdue five days later.

OSU closes out the month of January at Nebraska (Jan. 26) and at Michigan (Jan. 29).

The Buckeyes are then at home for three of the next four games - Rutgers (Feb. 2), Penn State (Feb. 7) and Illinois (Feb. 14). They play at Indiana on Feb. 10.

Following that four-game stretch, Ohio State heads up to East Lansing to play Michigan State a second time on Feb. 17. A game in Columbus vs. Northwestern three days later precedes a contest at Maryland on Feb. 23.

OSU's final game in February is at the friendly confines of Value City Arena against Iowa on Feb. 26.

Ohio State closes out the regular season at Purdue (March 2), at Northwestern (March 6) and at home against Wisconsin (March 10).

The 2018-19 campaign marks the first time in which the regular-season league title will be determined following a 20-game schedule.

The Buckeyes finished second last year in the Big Ten with a 15-3 conference record. Purdue had an identical league mark, but OSU had the head-to-head tiebreaker advantage.
