

Cooper, Berry, Saunders Out On First Ohio State Depth Chart

Ohio State released its first depth chart of the 2019 season, as well as an injury report updating which players are out for the game against Florida Atlantic, and which ones are a game-time decision.

And here is Ohio State's full depth chart for the Florida Atlantic game.

Note Jashon Cornell and Zach Harrison stepping in for the injured Cooper, and Tuf Borland and Baron Browning both being listed as starters at middle linebacker.

pic.twitter.com/1z4leyIX1v

— Wyatt Crosher (@wcrosher) August 30, 2019

The injured list included some big names, including captain and senior defensive end Jonathon Cooper, who was known to be injured, but now has been confirmed out against the Owls.

A pair of other seniors in tight end Rashod Berry and H-back C.J. Saunders will also be out in week one, along with defensive tackle Taron Vincent and linebacker Justin Hilliard.

Here's the list of players who are "unavailable" or "game-time decisions" due to injury for Ohio State against Florida Atlantic. pic.twitter.com/XP29YrLury

— Wyatt Crosher (@wcrosher) August 30, 2019

Running back Demario McCall and defensive ends Tyler Friday and Tyreke Smith are the three listed as game-time decisions for Saturday.