Ohio State men's basketball teammates became opponents briefly on Sunday, as point guard Duane Washington and forward E.J. Liddell squared off in a game at the G League Elite Camp in Chicago. Washington helped lead team two to an 80-74 victory, as both players earned praise online for their play.

Washington had the better day of the two on the stat sheet. He came off the bench and racked up 13 points on 5-of-12 shooting while nabbing a pair of rebounds, a steal, and two assists. He did pick up four fouls and had three turnovers, but his +20 +/- was tied for the best of any player in the game with Michigan's Chaundee Brown. Washington was named as an early standout at the event by Sports Illustrated's Jeremy Woo.

Good first day at G League Elite Camp. Two competitive games. Early standouts (as I saw it):

Jose Alvarado
Chaundee Brown
Marcus Carr

Celtics writer Chris Grenham also praised the Buckeye guard.

Really like what I've seen from Ohio State's Duane Washington Jr. so far today. Fantastic leader - super vocal on the court and from the bench.

He's close with fellow Buckeye Evan Turner. The two went to dinner together following his workout with the Celtics earlier this month.

Liddell, meanwhile, started at the No. 4 position for team one and had a quiet but solid day himself. He scored just five points, but he grabbed six rebounds and doled out a pair of assists. He knocked down this nice corner three, too.
