

Five Former Ohio State Players To Participate In 2020 Senior Bowl

Ohio State will have five former players participate in the 2020 Senior Bowl on Saturday (2:30 p.m. ET on NFL Network), marking the highest number of Buckeyes to appear in the nation's premier pre-draft all-star game since 2016, when wide receiver Braxton Miller, tight end Nick Vannett, defensive tackle Adolphus Washington, linebacker Joshua Perry and safety Tyvis Powell played in the game.

Official North vs South Rosters are LIVE!

Head over to <https://t.co/dROrLVt6CL> GAME TAB #TheDraftStartsInMOBILE
pic.twitter.com/H6nklzO9o

— Reese's Senior Bowl (@seniorbowl) January 19, 2020

Former wide receiver K.J. Hill, offensive guard Jonah Jackson, defensive tackle DaVon Hamilton and linebacker Malik Harrison are set to play on the North team, while wide receiver Austin Mack will suit up for the South. No word as to why Mack — a native of Fort Wayne, Ind. — is on the South, though he was considered a late addition to the roster, accepting his invitation on Jan. 18.

Cornerback Damon Arnette also accepted an invitation to play in the game at Ladd-Peebles Stadium in Mobile, Ala., but dropped out due to an unspecified injury. That means Ohio State is tied with Notre Dame and South Carolina for the second-most participants in this year's game, trailing only Michigan with six.