Following a stellar three-year career in Columbus, Wesson was ranked as the No. 58 overall prospect in the 2020 draft class by ESPN. He was not selected during the two-round draft on Nov. 18, however.

The Westerville (Ohio) South product joined the Buckeyes as a kid who was approximately 300-plus pounds and physically unprepared for Division I basketball. Wesson left as a bonafide NBA prospect with exceptional shooting range and an imposing 6-foot-9, 253-pound frame.

Wesson showcased his elite three-point shooting ability at the NBA Combine, knocking down 16 of 20 attempts (80 percent) from beyond the arc to pace all players.

Ohio State's Kaleb Wesson surprised by finishing first in the NBA Combine 3-point star drill (making 80% of his attempts). He's also looking pretty svelte at 253 pounds, down more than
