

The Buckeye Sports Bulletin Podcast: No Season + Player Union Efforts (Feat. Joe Dempsey + Luke Ward)

Patrick Mayhorn and BSB staffer Joe Dempsey take a look at the cancellation of the 2020 Big Ten fall season, and discuss what went wrong that led to this point, along with whether the Big Ten made the right call, and if this decision will hurt Ohio State's roster.

Then, a long talk about the potential of a spring season, including a breakdown of Jeff Brohm's proposal, and the very confusing world of what eligibility might look like for current players if incoming early enrollees are allowed to play in the spring.

To close out the show, Patrick and Joe speak briefly about the recent push for a college football players association, and then Patrick talks to Columbus labor organizer Luke Ward (@realLuke_Ward) about the likelihood of a players association, the legal hurdles, and what the next steps might look like.

Follow the show on Twitter at @buckeye_sports, follow Joe (@joedempsey44) and Patrick (@patrick_mayhorn). Get more from BSB at buckeyesports.com, and subscribe to the newspaper by calling (614) 486-2202. You can listen on the embedded PodBean player below, or on YouTube, Apple Podcasts, Stitcher or SoundCloud, all of which offer the show for free. The next episode will be out on Friday, Aug. 21.

If you like the show, please be sure to leave a five-star review on Apple Podcasts. If you have a question for a future mailbag episode, leave a five-star review and include your question in the review, or hop on over to the BSB forums (subscribers only) and leave your question in our episode discussion thread. Our next show will focus on recruiting, so we'd love to take any recruiting questions, but any questions are perfectly fine.